

Friink

Mental Wellbeing Community

Software Platform

Contents

Overview	2
Business Model: Freemium	2
Where does it stand?	2
Why Friink?	3
Problem Statement	3
Solution	3
Market Analysis	3
Challenges	3
Meet the Team	4
Muflah UI Furqan	4
Jamshid Dastur	4
Timeline & Milestones	5
MVP Scope	5
Business Model	6
Monetization	6
Pricing	6
Professional Verification	7
Liability	7
GTM Strategy	8
Target Market	8
Onboarding Channels	8
User Onboarding (Internet Marketing & Events)	8
Professional Onboarding (Internet Marketing & Events)	8
Technical Details	9
Web & Mobile	9
Backend	9

Overview

Friink is a software platform that combines a social community with a professional listing, built specifically for mental wellbeing. It gives everyday users a space to connect, share, and follow others while giving verified mental health professionals a place to offer real services to people looking for them.

A microblogging feed built around genuine connection rather than broadcast reach. A follow system keeps circles intentional, not one-sided. Privacy focused controls, given the sensitivity of what people may choose to post.

Practitioners can get verified and list services directly on the platform. Verification approved by human moderators so not just anyone can claim the badge. A dedicated directory lets users discover professionals by rating and location, kept deliberately separate from paid visibility features, so trust in the directory stays unbiased.

Business Model: Freemium

Signing up and using Friink is free for everyone. Professionals pay a small monthly fee after a free first month to maintain verified status and host services. Optional low cost addons let any user boost their reach in the general feed or showcase their profile view count.

Where does it stand?

Built from the ground up over the past several months — product requirements fully scoped, architecture and data model in place, and a working early access version constantly updating at friink.com. Two founders, hands-on across product, design, and engineering, based in Pakistan and building for a global audience.

Why Friink?

Problem Statement

In a country like Pakistan mental health and wellbeing is often neglected due to which many people don't get help on time. The niche is partially regulated and awareness regarding it is still not common knowledge.

Understanding the issues is one part but finding help is a separate struggle. Even if one gets support, it's very common to not stick with a therapist. Visiting a professional based on their rating is one thing but syncing with a therapist is unpredictable.

Solution

Friink aims to be the platform that spreads mental health awareness and makes it accessible to everyone and introduces an interaction mechanism that lets help seekers get in touch with professionals.

Market Analysis

According to the US Census Bureau, Pakistan's population stands at roughly 259 million as of 2026, the 5th most populous nation in the world, with a median age of just 21/22 years. A young population disproportionately exposed to the economic and social stressors driving demand for mental health support.

NIH published the ratio for known professionals using WHO's data working in Mental Health per 100,000 population in 2020. Link to table. And the need for mental health services is estimated to be 24 million according to NIH which is roughly 10% of the population.

This leaves us with a combined total number of Clinical Psychologists and Psychiatrists to be 3,564 as of 2020, with 3,000 clinical psychologists and 564 psychiatrists. Need is there, regulation and supply is just not.

Challenges

If we were to talk about challenges then the obvious one is a lack of professionals in this domain but it's not as simple as providing with supply will solve the crisis, the blocking factor can also be awareness.

1. Lack of professionals: we just don't have enough qualified practitioners.
2. Lack of awareness: people either don't understand mental health issues or flag them as something else.

Meet the Team

Muflah Ul Furqan

Founder & Product Manager

- 7+ years working on software products, SaaS and Enterprise.
- Contributing as Product Manager, UI/UX Designer & Developer.

Jamshid Dastur

Cofounder & Engineering Lead

- Serial entrepreneur, Software and IoT.
- Contributing as Engineering Manager and solution architect.

Timeline & Milestones

We aim to work on the web app, building it using a platform that allows migration to mobile later.

- MVP Scope finalized.
- Designs finalized.
- Development started in August, 2026.

Milestone	Expected	Value Added
Early Access Go Live	End Aug 2026	Users can signup and try the microblogging feature.
MVP Go Live	End Oct 2026	Professionals can register and professional listing will be accessible.
Marketing & Professional Onboarding	Early Nov 2026	Social media marketing to create an organic user base. Early professionals to be onboarded.

MVP Scope

Feature list sorted by priority.

1. Auth, session, and user profiles.
2. Microblogging.
3. Professional registration & verification. ^[1]
4. Control Panel - Friink Admin.
5. Chat.
6. Media attachment.
7. Payments & Subscriptions. ^[2]

1. Early joiners (first 100 professionals) will be given indefinite free subscription.

2. Payments will require company registration which might take time.

Business Model

Friink aims to provide a transparent subscription model to its users with no hidden fees and monthly subscriptions only.

Friink will launch as freemium.

Monetization

- Anyone can create an account and use the platform for free.
- Professionals will get the first month for free after verification.
- After the first month's end professionals will have to pay.
- Paid addons will let users unlock extra features.

Pricing

- Friink Pro (Professional Registration): USD 5/month
- Addons
 - Profile Boost: USD 2/month
 - Profile Views: USD 2/month

Professional Verification

Verification is one of the most important aspects of Friink and the question is how do you verify? The answer is simpler, you look up a database.

Two types of professionals act as therapists in this context.

- Psychiatrists
- Psychologists

In Pakistan, the regulatory body that grants licences to health professionals is PMDC and they maintain a public database however we don't have a body that regulates psychologists as of now. Friink will publish the credentials of professionals in both cases in the following format:

- Full Legal Name
- Credential type: Psychiatrist/Psychologist
- Issuer: PMDC/Name of Institute
- Credential ID: PMDC Registration Number/Degree Serial Number

Liability

Since the credentials are published within the app, Friink is not liable for further verification and this will be communicated to users via Terms of Service.

GTM Strategy

Target Market

- Pakistan & South Asia.
- Global.

Onboarding Channels

Social media and referrals.

User Onboarding (Internet Marketing & Events)

Targeted audience: people between age 16 and 35.

- Users will discover Friink via social media marketing organically.
- Friink team will participate in events to spread the word.

Professional Onboarding (Internet Marketing & Events)

Targeted audience: qualified psychologists and psychiatrists, ideally under 35.

- Professionals will be directly outreached to join the platform.

Technical Details

Friink is a multi-client app with a web app, a cross platform mobile app and decoupled APIs.

Web & Mobile

- JavaScript Framework

Backend

- API: .NET
- Database: PostgreSQL